➤ MY ACTIVITIES FOR THE TTTdM

I am Mario Ghioldi, I come from Sardinia and I love discovering new cultures and studying/talking about International Development. In the last years, I tried to merge my two passions living and working in 8 cities coming from different parts of the globe: Oxford, Lima, Madrid/ Managua/ Rome/ New York City/ Warsaw. Thinking the importance of sharing values and ideas, I love working with people having different cultures and experiences. Beyond writing monthly articles for the TDM's NL on International Economy and development, I also attended different conferences as panellist on behalf of the Think Tank.

STUDIES ◀

I am currently enrolled in a PhD programme at the IBS Budapest, focusing my research on development aids and democratic openness. In the last years I got different certificates and diploma on international development coming from Harvard University, University of Geneva, University of Leiden and the United Nations Schools of UNITAR and UNSSC. Moreover, I got two postgraduate diplomas on Human Rights protection and the EU affairs released by the most relevant Italian schools of International Relations (SIOI, ISPI). I graduated at the University of Siena, final score 110 cum laude.

➤ WORK EXPERIENCE

I am currently working as Financial Advisor for Intesa Sanpaolo. In the last years, beyond an experience inside Accenture Warsaw as Financial Analyst, I worked and cooperated with different diplomatic teams in multilateral and bilateral sectors. Firstly, I joined the Permanent Mission of Italy to the UN during the Italian Presidency of the UNSC, I worked twice for the Permanent Mission of El Salvador to the Rome Agencies and I joined the Embassy of Italy in Nicaragua as intern and later as typist. In the end, I also worked as volunteer in Lima's slums.
